Are you looking for quick access to statistical collections? VOCEDplus has a dedicated webpage where you can access current and archived releases of NCVER's Australian vocational education and training statistical collections. This includes the Apprentices and trainees collection, the Student outcomes survey, and the VET provider collection, also known as Students and courses.

The webpage also includes links to other key international statistical data and publications and other statistical organisations and resources from around the world. Access the webpage through the Browse menu.

If you are using the Advanced Search function, you can use the Peer-review filter at the bottom of the screen. Just tick the check box before you click Search.

Results of the latest poll

Did you know that the number of active mobile phones is expected to reach 7.3 billion this year? There will be more mobile phones than people. 2014 will also see the use of smartphones reach 1.75 billion. Smartphone users spend 80% of their time using apps. Apps are powerful, dynamic, and innovative, and have become a way of life for, not only smartphone users, but also tablet users. In 2013, VOCEDplus had 31,250 visits from users of mobile devices, which prompted us to wonder: what if VOCEDplus had its own app for mobile users?

The app would allow users to search and browse the VOCEDplus website through a tailored mobile-friendly interface. The app could also allow users to set up alerts, 'favourite' and share items via social media.

So the second of our occasional mini-polls asked VOCEDplus users exactly this question.

Poll

If there was a VOCEDplus app for searching, alerts and more, would you use it?:

- A. Yes
- B. No
- C. Maybe

The results were encouraging.

85% of those who responded indicated that they would use a VOCEDplus app.

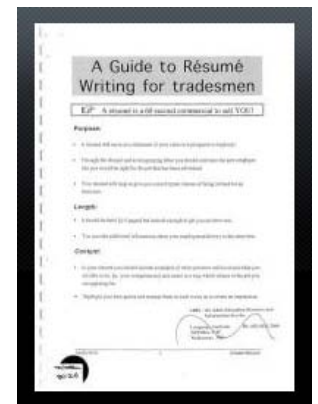

Thank you to those who responded to our poll. Based on this finding, the team will now investigate further the feasibility of creating a VOCEDplus app.
